

University of Canberra

Owen Bullock

Prose poems, written by members of the Prose Poetry Project, November 2014 to July 2017, compiled by the editors

Biographical note:

Owen Bullock's publications include urban haiku (Recent Work Press, 2015), breakfast with epiphanies (Oceanbooks, NZ, 2012) and sometimes the sky isn't big enough (Steele Roberts, NZ, 2010). He won the Canberra Critics' Circle Award for Poetry 2015. He has recently completed a PhD Candidate in Creative Writing at the University of Canberra.

He didn't provide. He smacked his daughter one time and bent her finger back. He shared blame for 9/11 – the world had not evolved towards peace, he had not evolved.

(from Seam 2015)